SCHÖNWALD Glass Culture made by AXUM SCHÖNWALD breaks the bounds of gastronomic fantasy

The interplay of two successful gastronomy experts now brings refreshing variety to dining table and buffet: SCHÖNWALD Glass Culture manufactured by AXUM. A superior glass collection in choice, colours and shapes which the SCHÖNWALD porcelain factory sources from the illustrious manufacturer, AXUM Bohemia, and will distribute exclusively worldwide in the future.

“SCHÖNWALD Glass Culture is a valuable addition to our portfolio”, commented Christian Strootmann, board member of BHS tabletop AG, to which the SCHÖNWALD brand belongs. “It opens up new platforms for our clients to present their culinary ideas and invent interesting dialogues between glass and porcelain”.

Thanks to the groundbreaking fusing technology – a complex high-temperature manufacturing process which AXUM has refined – a virtually unlimited flexibility in terms of shape is achieved. The result is an impressive spectrum of plates, platters, dishes and presentation elements with strikingly unusual contours, glowing colours and fascinating surfaces. SCHÖNWALD offers this imaginative diversity in four variants: clear glass, sandblasted, in black glass and red with decoration.

These extraordinary glass pieces convince not only through their designs and colours, but also meet the highest day-to-day demands of modern catering. They are absolutely dishwasher-proof, suitable for use in the microwave, and are exceptionally scratch and chip resistant.

Discover the new dimensions of food presentation at the SCHÖNWALD trade fair stand (Hall B7, Stand B7.500) at INTERNORGA in Hamburg, from 12-17 March 2010.
